

Hunger hurts. Especially at Thanksgiving.

FOODSHARE

One out of six children in our community doesn't have enough food to eat. The pain of hunger is especially wrenching at Thanksgiving time.

The demand at area food pantries is growing and we need your help. We're not asking you to do everything. But you can do something.

Please donate $10 to Foodshare today — or whatever you can give. Every dollar helps provide meals through food pantries, community kitchens, and homeless shelters across Hartford and Tolland Counties.

Thank you.

Please help feed hungry people this Thanksgiving.

We could list all the reasons why you should make a donation to Elms College, but we think it's best you hear it from your peers – who already support the Annual Fund.

“As a young alum it feels good to give back. Elms gave me the support, confidence and base from which I could build my life. I am very happy to do what I can to enrich the educational and life experiences of students at Elms. As alumni we can share memories and experiences that have helped shape who we are today. Every little bit helps and I am proud to help as much as I can.”

–Kyle Seyboth 2005

“I give because it was the donations from alumni that made my Elms College education possible. I am forever grateful for receiving a scholarship and will continue to give back as a way of paying it forward.”

–Hakeem Trotman 2010

“I choose to donate as a way to show my appreciation for those who have donated before me. I am grateful for my college experience at Elms and hope to make a positive contribution to the growth of the college and future students.”

–Carolyn Talmadge 2012

BLEED GREEN. GIVE GOLD.

As you can see Kyle, Hakeem and Carolyn each have their own unique and personal reason for giving back to their alma mater.

Whether it's because Elms gave you the footing for your career, because you want to pay forward the generosity you benefited from or you want current students to have the same Elms experience you did, all donors have their own story and reason for giving.

I hope this year you will consider joining Kyle, Hakeem and Carolyn by making a donation to the Elms College Annual Fund for reasons that are important to you.

BLEED GREEN
GIVE GOLD

We would like to feature more young alumni in our upcoming publications, so please let us know why YOU choose to give back by emailing Scott Netkovick at netkovicks@elms.edu

One for the books

In a year when students across the country and the world struggled to just keep up, our Mission Grammar School scholars excelled. How did they do so well when so many others struggled? The answer is simple: You.

Thank You!
Our supporters rallied around us and together we helped our scholars succeed.

Kept our students and programs growing

- $700,000 in scholarships awarded
- 32% of our Early Childhood families made use of a state funded voucher
- One on one counseling
- 6 additional classrooms
- New playground
- Expansion of educational experience for an additional 100+ scholars across all grades – that's a 30% increase in enrollment

Putting your support to work

With all of the challenges that the global pandemic posed, donor gifts this year had more of an impact than any other time in our history. You made it possible for us to provide a full range of services to our scholars and their families, and help them succeed in so many ways.

Dear «First Name»,

Your generous gift to Boys & Girls Clubs of Metro Atlanta made a difference!

With your help, we were able to provide much-needed relief and resources for our Club members and families during the COVID-19 crisis. Our work may have looked a little different in the midst of a pandemic, but because of you, our kids and teens received necessities like food and technology, help with remote learning, and continued mentorship and support from our caring staff.

For your records, we've provided the amount you donated to BGCMA's 2020 Annual Campaign on the right side of this page.

Thank you so much for stepping up and for your continued support of youth in this community.

Dear <<Letter Salutation>>,

You are wonderful. Really. You are.

I often write to you to ask you for a gift. I am not doing that today. I have done a lot of it over the years, and you can bet I will do it again some time very soon, too.

But not today.

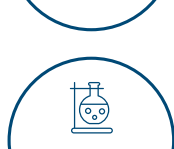

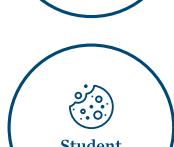

Today, I want to tell you that you are the real gift.

You're a member of Friends of Iowa Public Television.

Why are you part of this?

No one said you had to be a member.

You know the TV programs are free to everyone. Free to you. Free to your neighbors and their families. Free to your schools.

MOUNT HOLYOKE

The Mount Holyoke Fund

Dear xxx,

So many unique and historically valuable materials have a permanent home in Archives and Special Collections:

- A handwritten recipe for apple dumplings by founder Mary Lyon, along with her eyeglasses and the key to the original Mount Holyoke Female Seminary building.
- A class of 1883 group photograph with Hortense Parker, the first known student of color to graduate from Mount Holyoke.
- Scrapbooks from the early 1900s filled with scribbled notes, postcards, pressed flowers, basketball game tickets and theater programs.
- Oral histories with LGBTQ alums from the 1970s through 2018.

In working hands-on with the College's one-of-a-kind collections, our students and faculty have an opportunity to do new, creative and in-depth research for projects and classes.

As the head of Archives and Special Collections, it is both my great joy and great responsibility to collect, preserve and share these remarkable materials, which document the history of Mount Holyoke and the history of women in higher education. One of the best parts of my job is working with students: I lead class sessions for courses that range from first-year seminars and research methods classes to independent study 300-level projects. In addition, we employ a team of student assistants throughout the year, who help care for the collections and pursue their own research projects.

Thanks to the generous financial support of alumnae, family members and other friends of Mount Holyoke, I have greatly expanded our summer internship program over the past three years. We now provide a cohort of students with the opportunity to co-curate a physical exhibition, and, through workshops and field trips, we introduce them to experts in public history, libraries, archives and museums. Recent exhibit projects focused on student activism on campus, the history of women in physical education and the 100-year anniversary of the independent student newspaper, the Mount Holyoke News. Interns gain the skills to tell complicated historical stories that are relevant to our current lives — a transformative experience for them and for our community.

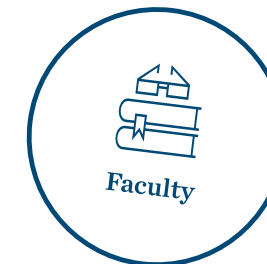

Gifts to The Mount Holyoke Fund provide essential resources to help the College meet its immediate needs and remain flexible in the face of the evolving needs of our students and faculty. Your financial support through the Library and Archives gift destination means that we can continue to offer these distinctive experiences for our curious and passionate students and give Mount Holyoke's unique materials the care they need. Whether you choose to direct your gift to Library and Archives or one of our 11 other gift destinations, your investment in Mount Holyoke helps to ensure that the stories of Mount Holyoke "forever shall be."

Sincerely yours,

Leslie Fields

Giving VOICE

August 2020

Dear «First Name»,

What is it like to be a child of color growing up in this world? The kids who turn to the Boys and Girls Clubs of Metro Atlanta (BGCMA) face injustice and fear that marks every corner of their lives and their communities.

Today, we're all trying to find our voices and rise above the anger and hopelessness. BGCMA kids yearn to express themselves and be heard, too. They want to move beyond the vitriol, be part of the movement for justice, and work to make a better world.

It starts with giving kids a voice.

BGCMA has always been an outlet for kids to make sense of the systemic racism they see and experience all around them. Our mission is to help them elevate their voices by giving them a platform to express the impact of injustice on their lives, and help them discover ways to put their words into action.

Daymion Moore, Youth of the Year from the A.R. "Gus" Barksdale Boys & Girls Club found his voice, expressing so eloquently his experience as a young, black man:

“ Words have power. One word, 'statistic,' is often used to describe me and other groups of young people in a negative way. I want the youth of today to rebrand this word, and thanks to the Boys & Girls Clubs, I am a statistic. I am a young black male who is not in jail. I am college bound. I do not use drugs or smoke. As I graduated this year, I am a secure, confident young man. ”

It's hard times for us black men. US

We're either in the ground or somewhere in the pen.

The system's here to keep us down.

It's time to rise up.

We have a voice now.

BLACK LIVES MATTER AMERICA

— DEVYN G., 13
Clubs in Schools
Louise Radloff Middle School

Home of the brave and free.

But are they free to murder me? Innocent teen? They had dreams, hopes and aspirations, just like you and me.

But now they are stiff. Cold. Lifeless. Forever silenced. In a dark empty void, no longer allowed to voice their opinions or reach their full potential.

They died a wrongful death. Shot down by a man who abused his power behind the barrel of a gun.

They're supposed to protect us, our homes, and our lives.

And yet they take away another and freely get by. That's when the fire strikes our hearts, tears drop and the burnings start. Justice is what we hoped for.

But is the one thing our people will never receive. America, the home of the brave. But are we really "free"?
